Sometimes I want to say something to another person.

I need to wait until the other person has finished speaking before I speak.

I can tell another person is finished speaking because they have stopped talking and their mouth is not moving.

Then I can speak to the other person.

When I have finished speaking I will try to listen to their answer.

When they stop talking I can then speak to them again.

If we speak at the same time we will bump words.